Welcome to Gerber's 1933 Tavern! The building you are in was constructed by the Bachelor family in the 1840's for use as a seed warehouse. Located adjacent to the original Erie Canal, all of Europe floated by the front door on a daily basis. With the arrival of Prohibition in 1919 the first floor was converted into a Speak-Easy. It continued as such until 1933, the year Prohibition ended and Gerber's began. Sarah and Harry Gerber were immigrants who built the business that was passed on to their only child, Leo. He ran the business until it closed August of 1976 where it remained closed until re-opened in 2013. What you see around you is the restored Speak Easy returned to its original luster. Here at Gerber's our food offerings range from house specialty sandwiches that honor Gerber's history, to nightly dinner specials, all to be enjoyed in an historic, casual but elegant setting. Thank you for joining us.

What is the significance of this design?

DO YOU KNOW...?

- Why servers wear arm garters?
- What is the Volstead Act?
- What year did prohibition end?
- Why do tavern workers wear long aprons?
